Secret to Success: “My associates are like extended family and my clients are like friends.”

Rick first began his career in public accounting in 1982. He led a long and successful career, most recently serving as a Principal in Scheffel Boyle’s Belleville office before retiring in October of 2018.

Rick decided to go into public accounting after admiring family members who had worked in the field. Throughout his career, he assisted many clients who experienced an unpleasant event in their life find financial stability and continue on in a positive direction. He always had a knack for being that trusted resource for people when they needed him most.
